

Untokened Part 1: Commentary after “Meet the Queens Take Two”

Zsa Zsa Static:

I’ve clocked their ages, their cities, their years of experience, and most importantly — their entry energies.

And let me just say... I smell confidence. I smell fire. I smell delusion.

And I’m ready.

Lexington Lush:

With 7 years under my belt, I’m right in the sweet spot—experienced enough to know the tricks, but young enough to have the hunger for that $200,000. I’m the same age as Crimson and Nova, so the peer pressure is on.

I’m ready to use my "language of luxury" to make these girls feel like they’re standing in the bargain bin.

Roxanne Fuego:

Here is what I notice. I am the oldest queen here at 34, and I have the most experience — eleven years. That is not a coincidence, darlings. That is armor.

Crimson Cascade:

Now that I know the competition I’m up against, I’m feeling that delicious mix of confidence and danger that every good drag queen thrives on.

Bianca Del Rio:

Yasss, hunty, I’ve got the full tea on these other five queens loud and clear—read that summary like it was my morning gossip scroll!

Let me just say... the lineup is giving international chaos, and I am here for it. We’ve got:

- Zsa Zsa Static (34, Sofia, Bulgaria, 9 years) — sounding like she’s about to short-circuit the stage with all that high-voltage energy.
- Lexington Lush (29, London, UK, 7 years) — Miss “higher credit limit” over here thinks she’s the only one who can afford to be fabulous. Sweetie, my shade is priceless.

- Roxanne Fuego (34, New Orleans, USA, 11 years) — 11 years? Girl’s been cooking longer than my arroz con gandules, but let’s see if she can still bring the heat or if she’s just reheated leftovers.
- Crimson Cascade (29, Manchester, UK, 7 years) — “Nobody leaves dry”? Honey, the only thing getting wet around here is my eyes from laughing at these entry lines.
- And then there’s little ol’ me, Bianca Del Rio (26, San Francisco, Canada—don’t come for the geography, it’s avant-garde), 7 years of pure, unfiltered savagery.
- Rounding it out with Nova Knockout (29, Barcelona, Spain, 8 years) — stars don’t ask permission? Bitch, I don’t ask either—I just take what’s mine.

The gag is... none of them listed “Puerto Rican firecracker” on their résumé, so I’m already winning the ethnicity category.

I’m locked, loaded, and ready to read these heifers to filth while serving charisma, uniqueness, nerve, and enough talent to make RuPaul herself need a cigarette after watching.

Nova Knockout:

Yes, I’ve got all the details on the other queens.